

AP Source: Thunder star Russell Westbrook signs extension

The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY Russell Westbrook is staying with the Thunder.

The superstar point guard and reigning NBA MVP has signed a contract extension to remain in Oklahoma City, a person with the knowledge of the agreement said Friday. The person spoke on condition of anonymity because the team had not disclosed the deal. ESPN first reported the agreement and said it would be for five years and worth $205 million.

Westbrook made an Instagram post Friday afternoon, a photo of him yelling at Chesapeake Energy Arena with his arms raised in the air. His words of choice to go with the photo are the words he lives by and the name of his charitable foundation: "WHY NOT?"

Westbrook said this week that Oklahoma City is where he wanted to be. He said he was thrilled with the off-season additions of four-time All-Star Paul George and 10-time All-Star Carmelo Anthony. Both have player options on their deals after this season.

"I love being here," he said. "I'm excited about the season. Obviously, with a lot of new changes, and I'm excited. From that, I'm going to leave it there."

Westbrook averaged a triple-double last season and was the league scoring champion. He averaged 31.6 points, 10.7 rebounds and 10.4 assists and broke Oscar Robertson's single-season record for triple-doubles with 42.

His success increased anxiety for Thunder fans who feared he might leave, as Kevin Durant did during the summer of 2016 when he chose to join the Golden State Warriors. Westbrook signed the extension on Durant's 29th birthday.

Westbrook said he hadn't signed because of other obligations.

"I've been at home," he said. "I've been travelling. Just trying to get my family together, honestly. You know, having a new son can be a little difficult, you know what I mean? I've been trying to help my wife, help my family and enjoying and embracing that moment as much as I can because I know during the season, I'm going to be travelling and moving around."

Truex wins pole at Dover for third NASCAR playoff race

The Associated Press

DOVER, Del. Martin Truex Jr. has tried to enjoy his career year as much as he can. The veteran driver says he never knows when the run might end.

He kept on rolling at Dover. Truex will try to win his sixth race of the season from the pole at Dover International Speedway in NASCAR's third playoff race. Truex has been the driver to beat all season and he proved it again Friday, when he turned a lap of 160.664 mph to win his second pole of the season.

Truex had clinched a berth in the second round of the playoffs when he won at Chicagoland Speedway. He had the dominant car last week at New Hampshire Motor Speedway until he was caught up in a wreck and finished fifth.

Truex has nine wins in the No. 77 Toyota at Furniture

Row Racing over the last two years after winning just three times in his first 10 years. Oh, and Truex won this race last year.

"It takes so many things to come together to be in a position that I've been the last few years, really," he said. "I'm very thankful, I'm definitely enjoying it. At the same time, there's that chance of a championship out there. You can't lose focus and say, this is going great, we're going to show up to the track and everything's going to be fine. You still have to work hard."

Truex ended Kyle Busch's bid at three straight poles. Busch started first in the first two playoff races and will start second on Sunday for the all-Toyota front row. He advanced to the second round when he won at New Hampshire.

"I'm glad for once we're first and he's not," Truex said. "I've been second to him a lot, so it's cool for us to get a pole."
