WATER MAIN FLUSHING & FIRE HYDRANT INSPECTIONS

Environmental Utilities performs regular, routine maintenance to uphold the water quality and system infrastructure by annually flushing water mains and inspecting fire hydrants.

During these operations, there may be some discoloration in the water which is not harmful to consume and will disappear when flushing is complete. Please note that discoloured water should not be used for laundry and that fluctuating water pressure may also be noticed.

Should discoloration persist beyond three hours, turn on your cold water tap or an outside sprinkler and let the water run for several minutes until the water runs clear.

For additional information or to confirm whether crews are working in your zone, refer to the Water Flushing Programs page on the City's website at www.medicinehat.ca/eu or contact Environmental Utilities at 403.529.8176.

RESIDENTIAL WASTE COLLECTION

COLLECTION DAY CHANGES

There will be no residential waste collection on Monday, October 14, 2019 due to the Thanksgiving Statutory Holiday.

Final debate behind them, leaders begin sprint to Oct. 21 voting day

The Canadian Press

OTTAWA

Party leaders entered the home stretch of the federal election campaign Friday, picking up the pace of their cross-country travel as they confronted listless poll numbers and a shrinking number of days left to inspire Canadians before they cast ballots on Oct. 21.

Conservative Leader Andrew Scheer was in Tsawwassen, B.C. to unveil his party's platform - detailing some of the billions in cuts he would make to pay for his promised universal tax cut and a host of boutique tax credits, while balancing the federal budget in five years. He's also planning to spend the campaign's final week detailing what his government would do in its first 100 days.

The choice facing voters, Scheer asserted in a news conference, is: "A Justin Trudeau-led government that makes life more expensive and a new Conservative government that will make life more affordable."

The Liberals actually scooped Scheer by releasing a portion of the costing of the Conservative platform before the leader's announcement. They highlighted the elements of the Tory blueprint containing $53 billion worth of cuts over five years, including $18 billion from planned infrastructure spending (though that money would be spent later, according to the plan) and another $14 billion in "hidden" cuts to unspecified operating expenses.

Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau was also in B.C. on Friday, after an exceptionally early morning rally at a downtown Ottawa food court, where he took a potshot at Scheer for waiting until after the campaign's leaders' debates to finally release his platform.

"The reality is, I think we all know it, you don't release your best work at 6 o'clock on the Friday of a long weekend," said Trudeau, who released his party's platform on Sept. 29.

At an event at B.C.'s Simon Fraser University later Friday, Trudeau framed the "important choice" facing voters this way: "Do we go back to the Harper approach with $53 billion of cuts announced in secret on a Friday night before a long weekend at the end of the campaign, or do we keep moving forward on a plan to fight climate change, to strengthen gun control, to invest in families and make life more affordable for the middle class and those working hard to join it."

In addition to the platform launch, Scheer was to attend an evening rally in Langley, east of Vancouver. Trudeau was scheduled to attend three events in the province, including an evening rally in NDP Leader Jagmeet Singh's Burnaby South riding.

Singh began the day early in Ottawa as well, with the release of the financial figures attached to his party's platform - after releasing the promises weeks ago. The financials include a series of tax increases, which Singh insisted will mostly hit the wealthiest Canadians, aimed at raising more than $30 billion next year to help pay for a national pharmacare plan, dental care and more affordable housing. It anticipates large deficits throughout the next four years.

Singh visited Montreal for public handshaking downtown before flying off for an evening event in Brampton, Ont., his old stomping grounds as a provincial politician before he jumped to the federal arena two years ago.

Green Leader Elizabeth May talked about foreign policy at the campaign office of her party's candidate in Ottawa Centre first thing, before decamping for a series of events in three different locations in New Brunswick.

Even Maxime Bernier, who has spent most of the campaign in his own Quebec riding, was on the move. The leader of the fledgling People's Party of Canada was scheduled to attend an evening rally in Halifax.

The early starts and packed schedules signalled a new full-tilt pace in the campaign as it heads to the wire on Oct. 21.

With advance polls open Friday through Monday, and families expected to discuss politics as they sit down to turkey dinners, both Trudeau and Singh are planning to campaign non-stop over the Thanksgiving weekend.

It was not clear whether Scheer or May will take a day off. Bernier is scheduled to campaign in his home riding of Beauce all three days.

Polls suggest the NDP has enjoyed a bit of a bump since Singh's well-received performances in three televised leaders' debates over the past 10 days. Combined with a bounce for the Bloc Quebecois in Quebec, Liberal hopes of winning a second majority have dimmed. Polls suggest they remain essentially tied with the Conservatives, with neither in reach of a majority.
