How confident are you about investing?

S ay, but that doesn’t have to spell the end of your financial success. There are many ways you can help yourself to be knowledgeable and confident in your investments:

- Improve your knowledge or confidence.
- Seek the advice of a professional.
- Get more information and advice through reading, attending seminars, or consulting with financial advisors.
- Consider investing in a mutual fund or exchange-traded fund, which can help diversify your portfolio.
- Keep track of your investments and adjust them as needed.
- Set realistic goals for your investments and be willing to take calculated risks.
- Stay focused on your long-term goals and be patient with your investments.

You can have a plan, it is better than just being a passive investor. During times of financial stress or market volatility, a solid plan can help you stay focused on your long-term goals. Having a solid plan can help you achieve your financial success.

Matt Solberg
Your Money
Senior Investment Advisor at TD Wealth Private Investment Advice. He can be reached at 403-508-2780.